

Spire Hall

Spire Hall sits on top of the tallest mountain in the world at the end of a long, winding path. Thousands of black, terrifying bats swoop and circle around its old, broken rooftop. The bricks are filthy and crumbling and the door is hanging off.

As you walk inside you can hear the bang, bang, bang of the old, rusty pipes. If it's raining you can hear the drip, drip, drip of raindrops as they fall through the cracks in the roof.

I would be too scared to go inside!
